SUGGESTS WORLD CONFERENCE
TO DISCUSS DISARMAMENT

U. S. Authorized to Call Such Meeting Under 1916 Naval Act Says Secretary

WASHINGTON.—An international agreement, "with all, or practically all the nations which will guarantee an end of competition in navy building," was presented as the only alternative to the building by the United States of a navy powerful enough "to command the respect and fear of the world," by Secretary Daniels in testimony Tuesday before the house naval affairs committee.

The secretary, who appeared before the committee in connection with its consideration of the subject of disarmament, dismissed as unworthy of discussion, a third proposal for an American navy less than equal to the most powerful sea power in the world "because it is waste of money to spend money on an agency of war which would be helpless if needed."

Mr. Daniels took occasion to outline the advice which he would give to President-elect Harding should he be asked for counsel on naval matters. This advice took the form of a suggestion that Mr. Harding immediately upon his inauguration invite the nations of the world to meet with the representatives of the United States in a disarmament conference. Authority for such action was given by the naval appropriation act of 1916, the secretary said, adding that if President Wilson "should call such a conference it would be impossible for him to make recommendations before his term of office expires."

Characterizing the naval holiday between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, provided for in the pending resolution introduced by Senator Borah of Idaho, as a "half-way" measure, Mr. Daniels reiterated his opposition to this country entering into such an agreement.

Naval Holiday Insufficient
"A naval holiday for one year or any period is like applying a poultice when surgery is needed," he declared. "It is little if any better than the suggested half-way agreement between the United States and two nations which have a treaty of alliance. An alliance limited to the United States, Great Britain and Japan would make for suspicion and distrust and would be followed later by a counter-attack of nations jealous of what they regard as an Anglo-Japanese and Japanese alliance to dictate to the world."

"The only wise course," he declared, "is to end competitive naval building, not for one year or five years, but for all time, but for all time by all nations. The time is ripe for securing such an agreement now and I would consider it a serious mistake to fail to embrace the opportunity for a permanent policy of reduction by accepting in its place a substitute in the form of a temporary and unstable holiday. The world is asking for no play time, but for serious business."

FIRST PICTURE OF THE RESCUE OF LOST U. S. BALLOONISTS

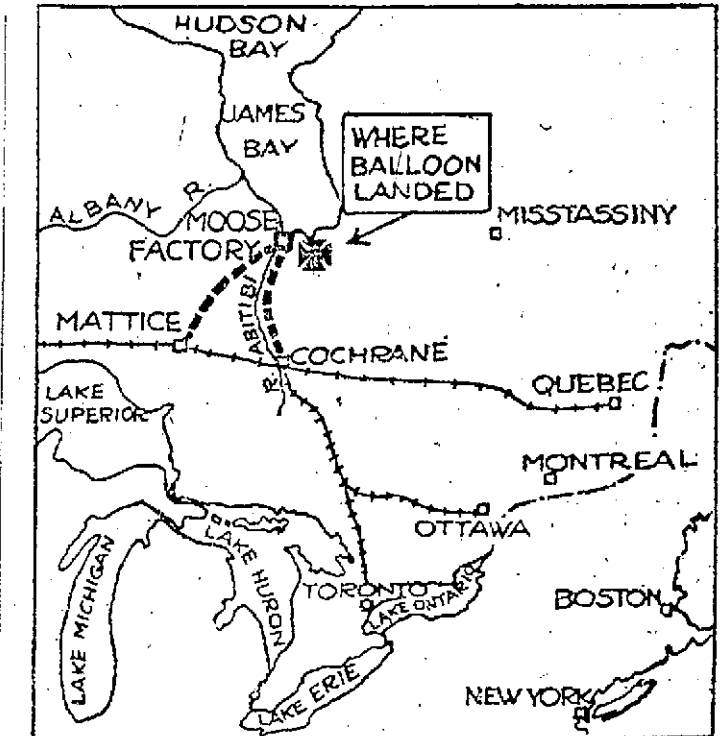

The Tribune and Leader-Press publishes herewith, exclusively, the first photograph to reach the United States showing the rescue of the Three U. S. navy balloonists who were lost for days in the frozen wilderness of northern Canada.

The balloonists left Rockaway, (N. Y.) air station on December 13. A strong gale carried the big gas bag speedily northward. On December 14 the airman decided to risk a landing and at 2 p. m. they came down in the dense wilderness just south of James Bay (see map). For four days they wandered, half-frozen and hungry through this wild, frozen country eating carbon moss and finally killing two of their three carrier pigeons for food. Then, with death on every day off, they chanced upon an Indian trapper, Tom Marks, who took them to his cabin, gave them food and then led them to Moose Factory.

The arrival picture was taken by S. A. Bradbury, a clerk in the Hudson Bay company's post at Moose Factory, who was present when the Indian trapper led the exhausted men in.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—A special from Toronto to the Evening News quotes the Toronto Telegram's Mattice correspondent as saying that the American naval balloonists arrived there at 2:30 p. m.

MacGuish reported he had met the party of aeronauts up the Missinibi trail. They had three toboggans and a cariole and each was taking a turn at riding.

'T WAS A LONG HUNT BUT WORTH IT TO FIND THIS WINNER

Mrs. Charles Grosskopf is Nice to Inquiring Stranger
Who Was the P. R.

SOME OTHER FOLKS
FAILED TO QUALIFY

One of them Almost Won But
P. R. Exhausted Her Patience

MRS. CHARLES GROSSKOPF, 1516 South Tenth street, has five dollars and a pair of tickets to the Max Bloom show coming to her as the winner of yesterday's search of the politeness reporter, if she will call at the Tribune and Leader-Press office.

Not merely being courteous, but offering aid and sympathy was for Mrs. Grosskopf with the politeness seeker. It was a cold and decidedly unpleasant day when the politeness reporter started out to find the most polite person in La Crosse. Walking by the Lutheran hospital, the reporter encountered an elderly man accompanied by a boy. Addressing the man the P. R. asked:

"Can you tell me where King street is?"

The man did not answer but turned to the boy with, "Weist du dann?" "No, I don't know no street like that," said the boy and moved on, quickly followed by the man.

A little farther on, stood a man on the steps of a building labelled "Thirst Palace." Coming up to him the politeness reporter asked, "Where can I get a can for North La Crosse?"

How He Lost Out

"I don't know; there comes a car—ask the conductor," answered the man nonchalantly.

"Do I get on at this corner?" persisted the reporter.

"Guess so," was the helpful answer.

The politeness reporter ventured a parting shot. "Do I have to transfer?"

"Ask the conductor! And you better hurry," came in loud tones. The reporter hurried.

Continuing the search the P. R. entered a store. The evening's rush seemed to be on and housewives attracted for the most part in large shows thrown over head and shoulders, were hurrying in and out. The P. R. accosted a woman who was patiently waiting behind the counter while several youngsters tried to decide which kind of candy was best worth the investment of one cent.

She Almost Had It

"Have you some fresh eggs?" was the P. R.'s first question.

"No, but we have some very good storage ones," responded the woman, with a smile. This sounded promising.

"Oh, they're never any good. I think I want some apples, but I want to see them first."

"Step right back here, please," directed the woman. "We have some lovely ones"—again the ready smile. The reporter followed her slowly to the back of the store, peered into several barrels, then stared out of the window for a full two minutes. The woman glanced toward the many waiting customers but still not the P. R.'s gaze with a smile.

"I wonder what time it is," said the P. R.

Half-past five," replied the woman, apparently underwhelmed by the incoherence of the remark.

The P. R. felt that the search was ended, but determined on a few more questions.

"How much are you selling sugar for?" The woman's smile vanished.

"Say, did you want to buy some or was you just asking?" she demanded with some asperity.

Search is on Again

"Oh, I was just asking," said the reporter meekly. Snatching a cookie from a nearby box, the woman hurried while the P. R. again took up the search.

Across from the Green Bay depot, stood two men talking in loud tones about the slowness of the trolley car for which they were waiting.

"Can you tell me how I can get to Twenty-third and Cass?" began the reporter.

The men merely stared. Then he of the louder voice and shuffling lunch kit, said, "Well, I'll tell you what I would do if I had it to do."

"What?" asked the reporter hopefully. The man leaned forward with an air of one settling old difficulties.

"I'd just ask the conductor on the street car," he said, and turning to his companion, he took up his interrupted conversation.

Here's the Winner

And then the P. R. saw Mrs. Grosskopf hurrying to the home of a neighbor. Her cheery greeting to a passerby sounded promising and the P. R. stopped her with:

"Could you direct me to Madison street?"

"Madison?" queried Mrs. Grosskopf. "Oh, you're way off. I think you better take the street car, but maybe you don't know much about them either." The P. R. was silent.

"It's kind of hard when you get puzzled up like that," went on Mrs. Grosskopf sympathetically. "If you could wait till my boy comes home he could show you the way. Of course I couldn't go with you because I

Decrease In Unemployment Is Reported

TOLEDO, O.—Marked improvement in the unemployment situation as compared with a week ago was reported when representative business men and manufacturers gathered Tuesday at the request of Mayor Cornelius Schreiber, after a number of ex-service men had demanded employment of the mayor.

One week ago the number of unemployed in Toledo was given by Central Labor union officials as 27,000. A careful comparing of lists showed, it was said, that the number now is less than 15,000.

The automobile manufacturing plant of the Willys-Overland company, it was announced, is preparing to resume production about February 1. Several other large factories which have been wholly or partially idle also have set that date for re-opening.

CLAIM REDUCTION IN PRICE OF GAS IS JUSTIFIED HERE

City Attorney Maintains Charge
Should be Twenty Cents
Lower in La Crosse

HEARING HELD AT MADISON
BEFORE RAILROAD COMMISSION

Price of Coal Enters Into Question for Determination

Maintaining that the average price of coal for three months past justified a reduction of 20 cents per 1,000 feet in the price of gas in La Crosse, City Attorney Oscar J. Swennes and Engineer Byron T. Gifford, the city's expert, presented arguments to the railroad commission of Wisconsin, at a hearing in Madison Monday on the petition for a lowering of one utility rate here.

The hearing was held on an order of the state board for the Wisconsin, Minnesota Light and Power company to show cause why the gas rate here should not be reduced, following the filing of a monthly report by the utility showing that the company was not paying for coal the estimated peak price on which it based its last increase in rates.

On the showing that it would have to pay an average price of $12.88 per ton for gas coal, the company was granted an increase in the maximum gas rate here from $1.05 to $2.05.

Mr. Swennes and Mr. Gifford presented figures to the state board, taken from the company's books, showing an average price for gas coal here during September, October and November of $17.91. This, they maintained, justified a reduction in the gas rate of 20 cents per 1,000 feet.

The company through its attorney, Charles McPherson of Grand Rapids, presented figures showing it has paid as high as $14.50 and $15 for coal and it was difficult to figure an average price at this time.

The consensus of opinion at the hearing was that there will be no radical reduction in the price of coal until navigation opens on the lakes in the spring.

The hearing was adjourned to January 31.

150,000 QUARTS OF LIQUOR POURED INTO SEWER OF WAUKEGAN

WAUKEGAN, Ill.—Federal prohibition agents started streams of liquor into the sewers of Waukegan Tuesday. The raid was unheralded and so swift that it spread dismay in the ranks of the local weeds.

Shortly after the raid started it was estimated that 150,000 quarts of liquor had been seized. Much of this was "in the woods" and the agents piled barrels to the curb and drove in the heads of the containers with axes.

The Baechle libation was composed largely of "evidence" collected by A. V. Smith, newly elected state attorney, and the local police. The main "mountain of plenty" was at Tennessee and Washington streets in the heart of the business district.

The contraband was carried to this corner and met there by twenty federal agents from Chicago. The men were armed with axes and the weeds light rubber goggles for none of them seemed willing to get their feet wet. But lined along the curbs were hundreds of spectators and most of them expressed willingness not only to wade in the streams that poured from the cases but even to venture nose dives.

A nearby store did a landlubber business in tin cups at a dime apiece, but some of the ax men turned their attention from the barrels to the crowd and this activity ceased.

SPEND NOTHING ON INAUGURAL HARDING PLEA

President-elect Asks Committee to Omit the Frills Planned in Connection With His Inauguration

COMMITTEE ABANDONS PLANS
IN ACCORD WITH REQUEST

Ceremony to be Simply Administration of Oath and Address by Harding

WASHINGTON, Ohio.—President-elect Harding has his way the inauguration of March 4 next will be as devoid of frills as a frontier wedding. Having overturned plans for a revival of the inaugural ball and a spectacular parade, he indicated Tuesday that so far as he consistently could he would keep away from whatever crowds assemble in Washington for the event and make the change of administration just after a matter of taking the executive offices under new management.

The president-elect's preference was made known in telegrams he sent Monday night to inaugural officials in Washington asking that, in the interest of public thrift, the ball, the parade, and every other show of pomp and festivity, be omitted. Instead of taking the oath from a specially built platform on the capitol steps, he suggested that it be administered quickly within the capitol itself and that he then be left free to go to work without more ado.

The time honored custom of delivering an inaugural address, which has been observed since the formation of the republic, is to be retained as a part of the day's ceremonies but it is considered likely here that it will be brief and couched in general terms.

Ends Congress Row

By his action the president-elect ended a bitter row in congress, where several influential republicans had protested vigorously against the plans of the inauguration committee to make this one of the biggest quadrennial celebrations the capital has ever seen.

Not only did Mr. Harding's request that the $50,000 appropriation for grand stand seats on the capitol grounds be dropped, but he asked that not a cent of money be spent on his induction into office. How far the inaugural officials and public will let Mr. Harding have his way remains to be seen.

William Hale Thompson, mayor of Chicago, and the center of a bitter controversy with republicans during the last campaign, was among President-elect Harding's callers today. The center of the controversy was not revealed, officials at Harding's headquarters saying merely that the mayor had been called into consultation on a number of subjects.

Cancel Plans

WASHINGTON.—An announcement that the Washington inaugural committee Monday night had cancelled all plans for the celebration in connection with the inauguration of next March, was received here with varying emotions. Those who had opposed the plan of making the occasion a gala one, expressed commendation. Others showed keen disappointment.

The action of the committee in meeting the wishes of the president-elect means that the parade, the inaugural ball and other features of the program of the past have attracted many thousands of visitors to the capital, from all parts of the country, will be dispensed simply of the formal address of the oath of office and an address by the new president, probably from the steps of the capitol.

For Mr. Harding will proceed quietly to the white house, where, in his own language, he "will hang up his hat and go to work."

MY SPIRIT
And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh.—Joel 2: 28.

The Union Station to Relieve Unemployment

WITH one exception La Crosse as a community has done everything that could have been done in the campaign for the union station. The exception is found in the city council's reversal of its first endorsement of the project—no very great matter, perhaps, in its intrinsic effect on a proposal which must ultimately be decided by the railroad commission, but serious in that it gave a color of internal disagreement to a movement which is fact has had practically the unanimous support of public opinion in the city. Fortunately the question remains open, and there is still time for the council to line up with the wishes of the community before the case goes to the final judgment of the commission. And there exists now certain reasons for the union station which are of great force and which, we believe, ought not to be ignored by the aldermen.

To put it in a nutshell, the success of the union station campaign would mean several hundred thousand dollars' worth of jobs to La Crosse labor at a time when such a source of employment would be very welcome. It would mean employment not only for a limited class of workmen, but for many trades ranging from common labor on up the scale. Commencement of the union station this spring would mean a year or more of steady work for literally hundreds of men whose prospects are otherwise by no means certain.

That the union station is also a matter of public improvement which is earnestly desired by all classes of citizenship in La Crosse merely strengthens its appeal from the standpoint of emergency employment. Certainly it offers more permanent values to the city than the job of carrying water between the bridges and dumping it back into the river which the present mayor a few years ago declared would be a justifiable public work to supply employment if nothing else were available. We trust that the reasoning which prompted that statement still holds its force for him, and that in view of the present necessities of the workmen for whom he was then solicitous he will not now fail to recognize the great employment possibilities offered by the union station.

From the Public Angle

IN the hearings before the railway wage board now on in Chicago the question at issue is the continuation of the national agreements entered into by the federal railway administration during the period of government control with the various railway labor organizations. The railroad managements seek the abandonment of the agreements in favor of individual arrangements between the single railroads and the organizations of the workers, on the reasoning that difference in working conditions on various roads causes the blanket agreements to interfere with efficient and economic operation.

There may be considerable truth in their argument, but it must be weighed against the possible results of a return to the old system upon the vital matter of uninterrupted transportation service. Unless there is a considerable degree of organization in the handling of railway labor disputes, the door is quite likely to be left open to a series of bickering quarrels and sporadic interference with traffic which is bound to be reflected in the general business of the country, largely dependent as it is on the railways for its existence. Even were it certain that the intention of the railroads would be pacific and fair and that certain labor organizations not enjoying recognition prior to the national agreements would not be returned to this unwelcome status, the chances are that the various managements of the roads would differ considerably in their labor policies. This at the least would cause a good deal of shifting about from one road to another by the railroad workers, and might at the most involve the danger of national sympathetic strikes in extreme cases of obstinate discrimination. Railway labor is conspicuous for its solidarity.

fers with efficiency and economy they are open to criticism. But in stabilizing the relations between the roads and their employees, they contribute importantly to a very vital public service, and as such ought not to be cast aside until it is definite that their defects cannot be fairly adjusted. On the face of things it would seem evident that in any event some sort of machinery for handling railway labor problems is imperative, and that failure to use for this purpose the strong existing labor organizations would be to throw away a useful adjunct that has the immediate advantage of being already established and available. Moreover, such a course would very likely be accepted by the railroad unions as a challenge to a struggle the outcome of which would be doubtful, but which would surely be disastrous in its effect on the public.

Not So Different

IN essentials the difference between the Russian soviet government and other governments seems to be mainly one of professions. So far as actual facts are concerned, the communists handle their problems just like any of the old style capitalistic governments which they delight to curse. Perhaps they are even worse in some respects—no "capitalistic government" in the world that we know of dares to try "forced labor" at the point of the bayonet, or deprives all but one minority group of its citizens of the right to vote. These things are admittedly being done by the bolsheviks, and in the face of them one wonders how their admirers in this and other countries can still cling to their idealistic notion that the bolsheviks are the great apostles of human liberty.

Appropos of this peculiarity of the admirers of sovietism we submit an editorial from the New York World that exposes another point of similarity between the "proletarian republic" and plain, ordinary capitalistic governments, in which the communists see the capitalists and raise them a slack or two:

For a hundred years it has always been easy to get up a meeting in New York to denounce the United States government, and such gatherings are now bigger than ever. Fully 6,000 people in Madison Square Garden Sunday night "boomed" against the deportation of L. C. A. K. Martens and applauded the customary statement that the "capitalistic press" keeps the people in the dark about the "true situation" in that paradise of the new freedom, Russia.

Such complacencies should know, and probably do, that the press of all countries would gladly spend large sums to get news out of Russia if it were possible. The last correspondent sent by the World to that country has not for some time been heard from, and it is not certainly known even whether she is alive. The World has long been trying to communicate with Emma Goldman to obtain her uncensored report on the "true situation," but without success. The people are "in the dark"—but the darkness is the shadow of soviet tyranny, whose first care was to suppress utterly the freedom of the press in Russia itself.

The only people who can get anything out of Russia are those who happen to meet the favor of the bolshevik autocrats. Even they cannot send out the news, but must wait until they reach a free country before they write their findings, which, in consequence, are always weeks, if not months, behind the events.

Russia is now the most interesting and the most tantalizing news center in the whole world. That the news is not coming out is not the fault of a press which, capitalistic or otherwise, would be extremely glad to get it. The "soviet republic" works in the darkness of a cloud of its own making.

In passing, we are reminded by the foregoing that the bolsheviks have recently called a council of war in Moscow of all generals and army commissars for the purpose of starting a war against Rumania. How far would any of the capitalist governments get right now with a secret decision to start a new war without even discussing the matter with its people? Think how the radicals in this country would yelp if such a project were attempted!

If the recommendations made by the special street improvement committee are adopted at the regular meeting of the common council on Friday evening, West Avenue will be repaved during the coming summer at the expense of the city. City Engineer Bradish said today that the granite dressing was not put on deep enough and in many places it has worn through, leaving holes which have caused many complaints from automobile owners.

D. Jehlen, who conducts a meat market at 121 South Third street, has purchased the La Crosse Sausage factory from Mrs. M. Fritz, the deal having been closed late yesterday afternoon. News of any unusual activity of the young people in your locality or school, articles on various subjects, comments as "Party Stunts," and so on, are acceptable. They must be original with the person who submits them, of course. Most any subject that you believe will interest boys and girls will stand a chance of publication.

All we ask is that you make your contribution short and to the point, using no unnecessary words, but at the same time not cramming your style of expression; that you write on one side of the paper with either ink or typewriter—no pencil manuscripts will be considered; that you address the contributions to the editor of this section in care of the editor of this newspaper, and then don't get too angry if your first item doesn't appear. The competition is strong and you should give yourself a fair chance before you give up.

It's all sorts of fun to see your writings in print, together with your name, and it is of so little value to your education. We suggest that you keep a copy of each of your manuscripts and compare them with the work after the editor has printed it.

Now, then, no matter how old you are, just so you're a boy or girl, let us hear from you.

Serving Two Masters

In grammar school I had always been somewhat active in athletics. I had been a member of the baseball team and played center on the basketball squad, but inasmuch as in high school—the one I attended, at least—it was not the custom for freshmen to display their athletic ability before the world at large and the school in particular, I made no attempt to get on any of the teams. All I did was pay strict attention to my books. Studied hard each day after returning home from school and came through at the end of every month with very gratifying grades on my report card.

This became tiresome. There was not enough variety. I wanted something different with which to break the monotony of it all.

And then came the time when I was advanced from the freshman class into the sophomore.

At—I can still remember that glorious day when I was told that I had "passed" all the tests and would soon commence on my second year of high school work. I realized that with my becoming a sophomore an invisible bar would be lifted and I would be taken into the social activities of the school more than while in the freshman class. I had learned the ropes.

I believe that I actually became big-headed with my becoming a second year student. I guess I was just arriving at that age when people say a fellow knows more than he will ever know again in his whole life. It is true, too, that now I began to see why freshmen are so often jibed at and joked about. Before I had never been able to grasp the idea, but now—

Such foolish things those freshmen would do! Of all the queer questions they would ask! And promptly forgetting my own days as a freshman, I began a campaign in conjunction with most of the other sophomores, to make life as miserable as possible for all the newcomers at school.

Here we have the case of an egotistically egomaniac. Keep in touch with it. More tomorrow.

30 Years to Learn How

The churning of margarine from nuts and fat-free milk requires highest skill and long experience which can best be gained by making creamery butter. The process is practically the same, with nut fat replacing butter fat. Flavor comes from the same source—from scientifically "ripened" milk.

Thus the man who has learned how to make the sweetest creamery butter, knows how to put the same sweetness into nut butter. This man is A. E. Hoffman, a butter expert with 30 years' experience, who supervises the production of every pound of Troco Nut Butter.

We have built Mr. Hoffman a new plant of white tile and concrete, the last word in modern food plant construction. All the elaborate equipment required by modern food experts is at his command. Every sanitary condition is perfect.

Churned from coconuts and fat-free milk
Mr. Hoffman makes Troco Nut Butter from snowy fat, extracted from the white meat of coconuts. This is churned with twice pasteurized, fat-free milk.

This pure nut fat is as nutritious as butter fat. It is highly nutritive—very digestible and easily assimilated. When considering food value, remember that healthy tropic races live on coconuts.

Mr. Hoffman develops the same flavor in Troco Nut Butter which made his butter so famous. This flavor delights and surprises every new user, as your trial pound will prove.

The principal difference is 15 to 40 cents a pound

The principal difference between Troco Nut Butter and the finest creamery butter is 15 to 40 cents a pound. Flavor and food value are the same. But you don't have to skimp and save because of the high price.

Fats are essential foods necessary to health, as war times proved in foreign countries. You get this health fat in its easily digested and assimilated form when you eat Troco Nut Butter.

GOOD BILL AT MAJESTIC

In "The Luck of the Irish," the screen adaptation of Harold MacGrath's famous novel, which is the chief attraction at the Majestic Theatre for today and Wednesday, Alvin Dwan has given to the amusement-loving public a photodrama that promises to be one of the most talked of productions of the present screen season. The action of the story starts in New York and moves to the other side of the world, Gibraltar, Venice, Naples, Cairo and Singapore, among the localities where the stirring action takes place. The story is that of a young Irishman who is leaving the world. He goes in love with a girl who, too, is on a tour but travelling alone. There is a shroud of mystery about her and he appoints himself her guardian and protector. As the tale unfolds he has ample opportunity for the use of his brain as well as his brawn. The action is fast and decisive, the romance fascinating and thrilling. James Kirkwood plays the part of the hero, Irishman, William Crogan and Anna G. Nilsson is the heroine, Ruth Warren. The vaudeville part of the program consists of two very good acts. Ward and Kahn present a routine of some good banjo playing and some comedy is intermingled and Andrew A. Copeland, a clever colored artist has an excellent form of entertainment, which he offers in a very clever manner. There is some versatile singing of various songs of which he is the composer as well as a jazz version of "Dardanella."

The Fox News completes the excellent program at the Majestic.

AT THE STRAND

On the point of deserting her ambitious young husband for his "best friend," a prominent young society girl was recently saved from disgrace by a servant in her household, who, unknown to her, was her own mother.

Not only did this wonderful guardian of the girl's name and future happiness prevent her from meeting the man who sought to betray his friend, but through a clever ruse she arranged for the husband to return home just after the young girl had renounced her false suit.

A temporary misunderstanding, which had arisen, was speedily cleared away, and the young couple were reunited, without knowing of the part the woman in the background had played in the matter.

Satisfied that the girl, whom she dared not claim as her daughter because of an indiscretion in her own life, was safe, the woman left the house without revealing her identity.

This dramatic episode forms one of the strong scenes in the Screen-Strand production, "The Prodigal Wife," which is to be shown at the Strand Theatre today.

AT THE RIVIERA

Garfield Thompson, who wrote the story of "The Open Door," the Art-class production released by Robertson-Cole, has had an interesting career.

Early in life Thompson won a commission in the navy. The love of the footlights proved too strong to resist, however, and for ten years he toured the country with notable stars.

One of his notable successes was in "Folly of the Circus," in which he played the lead. Subsequently he went as leading man with Beland and Pathé, but was induced to turn his fertile brain to authorship. Joining the Fox staff he wrote "The Devil's Daughter," "The Blunderer," "Dr. Ramon," and other successes.

Mr. Thompson's mastery of the technique of the screen reaches its apex in "The Open Door," which is acclaimed by critics who have reviewed the production as the most remarkable mystery drama ever written for the screen, which is at the Riviera today.

Bebe Daniels, Realart Beauty, Pleases in Dashing Comedy at the Rivoli Theatre

La Crosse playgoers witnessed the first starring effort of one of the newest of film winkers last night. The occasion was the premiere of the Rivoli theatre of "You Never Can Tell," the initial Bebe Daniels production for Realart.

It is needless to say that Miss Daniels scored a real hit. This was a foregone conclusion with those who have watched her rise through comedies with Harold Lloyd to leading woman roles in Paramount productions.

Starring, however, is a different matter and tests a player to the limit. Miss Daniels meets the test in a manner that thoroughly satisfied a large audience last night. She is delightfully amusing as the ambitious little check-room girl whose love for beautiful things leads her almost into trouble before she meets and loves a "Prince Charming," whom she thinks a taxi chauffeur but who really is a young millionaire. It is a clever and amusing story of the "good little bad girl" type in which Miss Daniels is to be presented by Realart.

Added attraction—Toonerville comedy "Narrow Escape," and the Bebe Daniels playing "The Village Orchestra," a very clever take off of a rube band playing their first public dance. For this number the orchestra has costumes and all the make up necessary to make it realistic. To say the number is a comedy hit is putting it mildly.

Miss Daniels transferred into the realm of higher vertebrates is very picturesque.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

A Cincinnati Barber Tells How to Make a Remedy for Gray Hair.

A well known resident of Cincinnati, Ohio, who has been a barber for more than forty years, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 ounce glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

INDIAN COUPLE AT THE RIVIERA FOR TWO DAYS

The Indian is rapidly passing out of current history, and as time goes on we will see less of the noble Red man. La Crosse has as guests this week an Indian couple, Mr. and Mrs. Buffalo Bear, of the Pine Ridge Agency, South Dakota, whose lives have been personally connected with some of the tragic and thrilling scenes of the Sioux tribe of which they are featured at the Riviera theatre tonight and Wednesday.

Buffalo Bear was a boy of eleven years of age when Gen. Custer and his soldiers were annihilated in the battle of the Little Bighorn and was with the Indians who did the massacring. He declined to discuss any of his warlike experiences, saying, "I have completely reformed and for that reason hate to recur to the days of conflict with the whites."

Mr. and Mrs. Buffalo Bear have very prepossessing personalities and it takes but a few moments' conversation with them to convince one of their high ideals. As Buffalo Bear speaks you are reminded of the Indian style of forceful oratory, which all prominent writers on civilization have vividly portrayed for he speaks eloquently and convincingly. The Indian has always been the friend of the white man," asserted the Sioux. "Our traditions tell us that when the American Indian first laid eyes on the white man they said he comes from the same Divine origin and is our brother—he has a head, and arms and legs—he has a body and a mouth and he talks—truly he is from our mold and is our brother." They welcomed him and protected him in the wilds until white leadership brought misunderstandings and troubles. The speaker claimed that the Indian always agreed to settlements of difficulties and relations to friendly relations. He cited numerous instances in the recorded history of the United States in which the Red man has shown his love of the whites.

SONG HIT WRITTEN IN HALF HOUR

It will be of interest to the public and especially those who are at all interested in popular music, that "Rings," which is the piece de resistance of the Novelties of 1920, was the quickest written song on record, that ever gained any popularity.

It was at rehearsal three days before the premier of the show, that Boyle Woolfolk, who was personally staging the show, realized that he had no finale to act on. He consulted Felix Rice, the composer of the play, and they studied the predicament. Rice said to his chief:

"Why did you wait until the last minute for your finale? I thought you intended using 'Nobody's Baby' the finale of last season's show as good as 'Nobody's Baby' so it's up to you to have one ready in thirty minutes, as by that time the chorus will be here for rehearsal."

"Rings it," replied Rice, "it's preposterous."

"That's it," yelled Woolfolk. "Write a song about 'Rings.' Think of the different kinds of Rings you can use and the possibilities of staging the number."

The idea appealed to Rice, and thirty-three and one-half minutes later he played and sang one verse and the chorus of "Rings," the biggest song hit in the Novelties of 1920. Mr. Rice wrote both the lyrics and music.

"It's the lyric that takes the time," said Mr. Rice, after completing the ditty. "I could write a whole opera in an afternoon if I had the lyrics to start with." Max Blum in the Novelties of 1920 comes to the La Crosse theatre for three days commencing next Thursday.

SONG HIT WRITTEN IN HALF HOUR

It will be of interest to the public and especially those who are at all interested in popular music, that "Rings," which is the piece de resistance of the Novelties of 1920, was the quickest written song on record, that ever gained any popularity.

It was at rehearsal three days before the premier of the show, that Boyle Woolfolk, who was personally staging the show, realized that he had no finale to act on. He consulted Felix Rice, the composer of the play, and they studied the predicament. Rice said to his chief:

"Why did you wait until the last minute for your finale? I thought you intended using 'Nobody's Baby' the finale of last season's show as good as 'Nobody's Baby' so it's up to you to have one ready in thirty minutes, as by that time the chorus will be here for rehearsal."

"Rings it," replied Rice, "it's preposterous."

"That's it," yelled Woolfolk. "Write a song about 'Rings.' Think of the different kinds of Rings you can use and the possibilities of staging the number."

The idea appealed to Rice, and thirty-three and one-half minutes later he played and sang one verse and the chorus of "Rings," the biggest song hit in the Novelties of 1920. Mr. Rice wrote both the lyrics and music.

"It's the lyric that takes the time," said Mr. Rice, after completing the ditty. "I could write a whole opera in an afternoon if I had the lyrics to start with." Max Blum in the Novelties of 1920 comes to the La Crosse theatre for three days commencing next Thursday.

DEATH IS GATEWAY TO LIFE BEAUTIFUL DOCTRINE TAUGHT

Rev. C. C. Rowleson Speaks on
"Our Life in the Infinite" in Sunday Sermon

"The most fundamental Christian doctrine is that death is the gateway to life," said Rev. C. C. Rowleson in a sermon on "Our Life in the Infinite" at the First Congregational church.

"Straight is the gate, and narrow the way that leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."

"And are we not then to believe there was a gateway into this life out of some other—a door that opened the way into the beauty and buoyancy of childhood—a way of death? We are aware that the mother's life is always a possible sacrifice to the life of the child. But what reason have we for supposing that creation? Whence those subtle intellectual and moral capacities? Whence those supreme possibilities of which every fond parent dreams? Surely these are not the mere products of the visible father and mother. The simplest knowledge of the law of heredity assure us that the child is the composite product of a chain of human struggles and victories reaching back into an infinite past. And in the high idealism of every child—alas! too often shared by parental and community influences—what other conclusion is there than that every son of man is a tentative son of God."

"It is just man's task not to allow this 'vision splendid' to fade into the light of common day." "Except ye be born, and become as a little child, ye cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven."

"How interested the little child is in the experience of life and in creative activity. For the million millionth time, all things are created new in each little child. How unwilling he is to cease his interesting round of activities. To go to bed, to sleep seems to him so absurd. And then there is such a mystery about silence and the dark."

"A certain baby boy whom I once knew, when he had unwillingly but sweetly gone to bed, after the lights were out and he was left alone, always cried out, 'Mama, I love you; mama, I love you.' With the answering voice from the distance, 'We love you darling, he sank into the fearless sleep of absolute confidence."

"As the lights go out with us, and we are left in the silence of our direct dependence upon and responsibility to God, are we able to cry out, 'Our Father, hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come?' If in truth there are the words of our hearts, there is always an answering cry from a voice that is softer than silence. 'My child, my grace is sufficient for thee. Neither life nor death, nor things present nor things to come, can separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

"Who has not known the experience of loneliness as one has gone from the old familiar environment into the larger life out yonder. This is the sickness accompanying new birth. Having become adjusted to the larger world, to the opportunity and responsibility of the greater life, who would return to the old limitations? Such may be the break that comes to old age. Such is the departure through the gateway of death which lies ahead of all living, that we may readily believe it is the entrance upon the new and higher and unfolding opportunities of the spirit."

"No child knows in advance what shall be the largeness or the limitation of his life as a man. He may know that that future is determined by the mental and moral equipment of his youth, that character determines the man. That is an inviolable law of spiritual being, and relates to the life of the spirit after what we call death. So as we pass out of life into eternity, as we say, we need have no concern with the reading of horoscopes or the pitiful revolutions of spiritist mediums."

"Jesus said, 'He that believeth on me hath eternal life.' Eternity is now as much as it ever can be, and eternal life is a present experience as much as it can ever be. He that has the true life of continuous death to the earthly and the carnal and who is forever being born again into the true and the spiritual, hath eternal life now and forever."

"Therefore we do not launch out on an enchanted sea when we make the great adventure of death, nor are we without the presence and guidance of an expert mariner. The captain of our salvation has charted the seas for us, and if we truly know him he will guide us to eternal rest, even as he guides us here and now."

LONG LOST WIFE FOUND AT WINONA ON TIP OF POLICE

Mrs. N. J. Sutherland, Missing
Since Last Month, is Located
by Her Husband

Mrs. N. J. Sutherland, missing for two weeks from her summer home at Buffalo Lake, near Packwaukee, Wis., and trailed by her husband through United States and Canada, was taken from a train at Winona, Minn., on a tip furnished by the Madison police. Her husband is now en route there to take her back to their home.

Mrs. Sutherland was known on the stage a few years ago as George Parker. Her mind is temporarily deranged, according to her husband.

Mrs. Sutherland had been taken to the Sutherland summer home for a rest. One day while Sutherland was in Packwaukee to obtain provisions, she disappeared.

Sutherland offered a reward for her apprehension. Police bulletins were scattered over the country containing a description and photograph of the missing woman.

Last Thursday Mrs. Sutherland arrived in Madison. She registered at the Capitol hotel, where she remained until Saturday. At the Northwestern station policemen picked her up and held her until her husband arrived.

Mrs. Sutherland insisted that she wanted to go to Elroy to visit friends. Sutherland consented to permit her to make the trip alone. After she left he became worried that he had done the wrong thing and asked the Madison police to see if she could not be apprehended there.

She had left Elroy and was on a train bound for Winona. The Madison police notified the Winona police and Mrs. Sutherland was again taken into custody.

BEACH'S WONDER SUDS

Suds that cleanse, rich, bubbling, honest-to-goodness soap suds that just melt the dirt right out of everything they touch.

Beach's WONDER SUDS is pure as water itself. It doesn't cause you to cough and sneeze and choke. It's just pure pulverized soap that dissolves instantly and forms thousands of rich, cleansing, sudsy bubbles.

Beach's WONDER SUDS is absolutely new and absolutely different. It's the greatest thing out for washing all those expensive silken dainties that require such careful handling.

Beach's WONDER SUDS

Is Concentrated

It is more economical because only a teaspoonful is needed to a quart of water to produce the thick rich suds that gently but surely dissolve the dirt.

"Fine Suds for Fine Duds"

SIMPLE APPLICATION THAT DISSOLVES BLACKHEADS

No more squeezing and plugging to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out and that is to dissolve them. To do this just get about two ounces of calomite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calomite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition. Any druggist will sell you the calomite powder and about two ounces will be all you will ever need.

SPORT SUMMARY

NEW YORK.—Reports from five temporary committees appointed to draw up plans for the creation of a national board of control for professional boxing today comprised the chief business before a conference of delegates from fifteen states.

The delegates, appointed by the governors of their respective states, hoped to finish the work of ratifying a constitution and electing officers by tomorrow night.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Tony Dennis and Joe Karsen, local men, boxed ten fast rounds to a draw here last night. In the semi-final which also brought out some speedy work, Jack Eile of New York, outpointed Walter Gray-jack of Milwaukee and in the preliminary Tommy Neary outpointed Selwyn Hoffman, another local man.

CHICAGO, Ill.—National association of minor leagues adopted an amendment to its constitution designed to stamp out gambling and game throwing.

NEW YORK.—A one fall finish match between "Strangler" Lewis, champion wrestler, and Earl Caddock, former champion, here, January 24, was announced.

DUBLIN.—Eamonn de Valera de- clared there ever was a Germany-Irish plot against Great Britain.

DIFFERENCES TO BE CLEARED UP AT BASE BALL MEETING TODAY

Presidents Authorized to Maintain Strict Supervision Over all Clubs

CHICAGO, Ill.—Differences of opinion concerning rules under which baseball is to be governed are expected to disappear at the meeting today of the minor league drafting committee with the committees of the two major leagues.

Approval of the new national agreement drawn up in New York recently, with appointment of Federal Judge S. M. Landis as baseball commissioner for a term of seven years was voted by the two major league committees yesterday. Formal endorsement by the two leagues may be reached today. Prospects of the minor leagues joining with the majors appear bright.

The president of each league was authorized and directed to maintain strict supervision over all clubs to prevent "pool selling" or betting in the parks and to investigate any rumor charging any player with offering, agreeing, conspiring or attempting to lose any game, betting on any game or of being interested in any pool.

In the new form of contract for players there will be a paragraph, it is said, relating to the conduct of the player on and off the field, intended to improve the morale of every club.

PLAN HOMECOMING FOR MAN-O-WAR IN KENTUCKY

LEXINGTON, Ky.—Tentative plans of Kentuckians for welcoming "Man-o-War," world's champion running horse, back to his home pastures with a parade, brass band and various festivities, have been vetoed by Samuel D. Riddle, the owner. In a letter to the Lexington board of commerce, Mr. Riddle said that on his arrival, probably January 15, Man-o-War would be taken to the Kentucky Jockey tract, and then to Blinets farm to be retired to the stud.

MARRIAGES SHOW GRADUAL INCREASE IN MONROE COUNTY

Sorting Season Starts in Vernon County; Tobacco Houses Working Big Crews

TOMAH, Wis.—That marriage is gradually on the increase in Monroe county is evidenced by the following report of Ole Jackson, former county clerk, who issued a grand total of 517 licenses from the year 1918, when the posting law was enacted to January 1, 1920. Of that number 117 were issued in 1918, 191 in 1919 and 200 in 1920.

Smallpox Scare at Wilton

The village of Wilton is at present working through a smallpox scare, due to the fact that two residents of the town attended public functions after the dread disease had broken out on them and thereby exposing many. The opening of the public schools of Wilton has been postponed and a general vaccination ordered by the village health department. Every possible precaution to prevent the spreading of the disease has been taken. Two hundred children were vaccinated on Sunday.

The general sorting season for Vernon county's 1920 crop of tobacco opened on Monday.

Vernon's four tobacco houses are all working big crews. Heavy deliveries of bundle goods were made the past week. The winter's work is on in earnest and will continue until late spring.

LENROOT CHARGES ARMY GRAFT ORGY

Senator Stirs Capital With Accusations of Waste in Muscle Shoals Project.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, frustrated by a Sunday-of rest after his all day effort against the Muscle Shoals project Saturday, was ready to jump back into the ring for a finish fight.

Lenroot will continue his effort to show that Muscle Shoals has been an orgy of waste and extravagance unrivaled by any other federal activity brought to notice by congressional investigation, and besides which the recent shipping board disclosures will pale into insignificance. The Muscle Shoals project is expected to come before the senate immediately goes into session on Monday.

Facts brought out by Senator Lenroot on Saturday are likely to have far reaching effects. Court martial of some of the army officers who built the project, costing from $6,000 to $10,000 each, and two clubhouses, costing $120,000 and another $341,866, are believed imminent.

Will Furnish Names

Senator Lenroot, replying to a question by Senator Overman of North Carolina, said he would furnish the names of these officers, some of whom are said to be socially prominent in Washington.

"A private soldier has received as high as 20 years for being absent without leave even when there were mitigating circumstances but so far as I know there have been no court martials in the case of these people," Senator Lenroot said.

Accuses Baker

The Wisconsin senator also said Secretary Baker, in an "unfortunate and arrogant manner," spent millions on the Muscle Shoals plant as a defensive measure after the armistice had been signed and in violation of the wishes of congress. Lenroot said Baker's reason for doing this was to get expenditures so far along that congress would have to make further appropriations.

WHEAT MARKET STIFFENS

Foreign Buying Has Bullish Influence on Prices; Corn Also Stronger
CHICAGO, Ill.—Fresh strength developed in the wheat market Tuesday morning as result of a mild recovery. Talk of improved domestic milling demand also tended to lift prices. Bulls contended that the United States had already exported too much wheat. Opening quotations which varied from unchanged figures to 2c higher, with March $1.77 1/2 to $1.79 and May $1.68 1/2 to $1.69 1/2, were followed by material gains all around.

March delivery touched $1.80, the highest point since November 22. Profit-taking led to a reaction. The market was unsettled, 1/2 to 1/4 c net higher, with March $1.78 1/2 to $1.79 and May $1.68 1/2 to $1.69 1/2.

Corn sympathized with the upturn in wheat. After opening unchanged to 1/2 c higher, including May at 74 1/2 to 75 1/2, the market closed steady. Exports of foreign corn as well as wheat. The market closed steady at the same as yesterday's finish. High-calcium corn was 1/2 c higher.

Oats were firmer, owing to strength of other cereals. Initial figures ranged from 1/2 c to a shade advance with March $1.77 1/2 to $1.79 and May $1.68 1/2 to $1.69 1/2.

Weakness in the hog market had bearish effect on provisions.

INCREASED INCOME NECESSARY TO MEET EXPENSES OF STATE

New Sources of Taxation One of Problems to Come Before New Legislature

BY FRED L. HOLMES

MADISON, Wis.—Financial problems loom as the largest question before the legislature. In order to provide funds to meet the increased expenses of government, it will be necessary to find new sources of taxation. Until the taxation problem is settled and it is definitely known exactly what the funds of the state will be it will be almost impossible to work out the remainder of the legislative program.

Governor Blaine will present his message to the legislature on Thursday. In his campaign speeches he advocated an increase in the income tax rates which have remained stationary since the law was enacted in 1911. It is believed that he will also recommend the repeal of the personal property offset. In asking for the repeal of the personal property offset to the income tax Governor Blaine is not alone. He will have the support of the state tax commission in making this recommendation. Under the present law if a person has been assessed against his personal property and also on his income the amount of taxes assessed against his personal property may be used as an offset against his income tax. This provision of the law has nullified in part the pro-ration of the income tax law. The tax commission says that since the enactment of the income tax only 57 per cent of the taxes levied have been collected in cash. Forty-three per cent of the taxes levied have been offset by the personal property tax. The amount total of the tax levied from 1913 to 1920 inclusive was $53,142,235.14. Of this amount $20,697,259.16 was collected in cash. In view of the present demand for revenue to meet public expenditures, this seems to be an opportune time to repeal the offset provision. In 1920 the offset amounted to $5,371,606.41. With the repeal of the offset provision this amount would have been added to the revenue of the state.

The income tax is largely an urban tax. The total offset in 1920 was $5,371,606.41. Of this amount $4,666,777.79 was used in cities and only $704,828.62 in towns and villages.

The commission recommends that the family exemption of residents be extended to non-residents of the state to comply with the United States supreme court decision rendered on the same feature in the income tax law of New York. The commission recommends that the personal property offset provision be abolished that such dividends be taxed.

At present dividends from banks are not subject to the income tax in the hands of the stockholders but the commission recommends that in the event that the personal property offset provision be abolished that such dividends be taxed.

The commission also favors a more liberal treatment of the secrecy provision in regard to income tax returns and quotes the division of markets and certain other civic bodies as having sought for information contained in income tax returns for the purpose of effectively carrying on their respective activities, but the commission has not been able under the present provision of the law to oblige them. It does not advocate opening up the returns to the general public but believes they should open to other departments under appropriate rules. The commission also suggests that the dividend deduction allowed individuals be reduced to $5,000 in analogy with the federal surtax act.

The commission recommends that the rate of taxation on individual incomes be made to correspond with the rate now applicable to corporations.

The hotel lobbies are crowded with people who are here for the opening of the legislature. The prediction has been made that owing to the recent increase in railroad fare members of the legislature will be inclined to remain in Madison and to push the work of the session to an early close. There is a spirit prevalent among the members here today that such a policy may be followed. It is believed that this question will be brought before the caucuses tonight and that a committee will be appointed to devise means hastening the session work.
